TAA (Training and Employment Assistance) is a federal program that helps unemployed workers train and become reemployed. To qualify for TAA benefits, you must meet specific eligibility requirements. Some of these requirements include:

- Being employed in a job that is not in your field
- Having worked for a period of time in a job that is not in your field
- A significant wage loss

Before applying for TAA, you should review the eligibility requirements and determine if you qualify. You can also contact the nearest TAA office for more information.

The TAA process involves several steps:

1. Review your eligibility
2. Complete an application for TAA
3. Attend a TAA orientation
4. Participate in TAA services
5. Complete a job training program
6. Obtain employment
7. Maintain employment for a specified period of time

If you are interested in applying for TAA, please contact your nearest TAA office or visit www.labor.ny.gov/career-center-locator and search "Find My Career Center".

TAA is administered by the New York State Department of Labor, which is a state agency responsible for ensuring that workers have access to the training and employment services they need to successfully transition to new careers.
